

ABSTRACT

A method of fabricating composite vehicle panels includes the steps of forming a first, lower panel with a plurality of raised features having coplanar end portions, forming a second, upper panel having a depending peripheral lip adapted to engage a periphery of the first panel, placing an adhesive on the end portions of the raised features of the first panel and securing said panels together at the raised features and about the peripheral lip.